History of Protected Areas in Jordan

Dibeen Forest Reserve was established in 2004. It covers an area of 8.5 km² and protects a representative sample of the Aleppo Pine forest in Jordan. It is home to 150 plant species including rare orchids and several faunal species such as Persian Squirrel and the Stone Marten. The physical and age structure of the forest as a whole is remarkably varied with trees of widely different ages and sizes and a distinct under-canopy in many areas. This variety is aided by the presence of wadis, which provide different aspects, moisture levels and soil conditions throughout the forest.
